HON. PATRICK A. COLLINS,

MANAGEMENT OF DEPARTMENT.

The management of this department is vested in the members of the commission, who are represented by a General Superintendent, having control over the employees and property of the department.

The General Superintendent, with headquarters at Mount Hope Cemetery, directs the general work carried on in the cemeteries and burying-grounds, directs funerals therein, and keeps records of all interments pertaining to Mount Hope Cemetery, together with the location and transfer of bodies.

The General Superintendent acts under the direction of the commission, and is responsible to it. The duties of this position are manifold, requiring a knowledge of the needs of all the burial-grounds and cemeteries, and personal attention to the varied and different kinds of work carried on in this department.

During the past year Mr. James H. Morton has acted as General Superintendent. Mr. Morton has performed the various and arduous duties of his position in an efficient manner. The work of the department under his superintendence has gone forward in a way most satisfactory to the trustees.

The Board employs a secretary, who is the executive officer of the Board, and, in accordance with the requirements of the Acts of the Legislature, keeps the records of the Board, and has control of all documents, maps, papers and general information pertaining to the department. The secretary has charge of the finances of the department, and, in accordance with the City Ordinances, is under bond.

The secretary is Mr. Albert E. Smith.

While the superintendent has general charge over all the burial-grounds, the department is represented by custodians in certain cemeteries which are open to the public.

The General Superintendent has complete charge of King's Chapel, the Granary, the Central, the Westerly and Walter-street Burial-grounds, Mount Hope Cemetery and the City Cemetery.

The Bennington-street Cemetery is under a working custodian, Mr. Frank L. Turner, who has charge of the grounds, and does the necessary work in the making of interments.

The Charlestown cemeteries — Bunker Hill and Phipps street — are in charge of a custodian, Mr. A. M. Lydston.

Evergreen Cemetery and the Market-street Burial-ground, in Brighton, are also under the charge of a custodian, Mr. Charles P. Harding; and Mr. John J. Burnes has charge of the North and South Dorchester; Eustis street, Roxbury; South, Washington street; and Hawes, South Boston, Burial-grounds.

The department has an office in City Hall, where the general business of the department is transacted.

GENERAL WORK OF THE DEPARTMENT.

The card catalogues and plans locating lots, graves and tombs are being completed as fast as the nature and accuracy of the work will permit. The records have to be verified in many ways; the value of the work entirely depends upon absolute accuracy in every detail.

The City Engineer, Mr. Jackson, has kindly coöperated with this department in the engineering work, and his assistants have prepared the plans of the burial-grounds and cemeteries needed in the prosecution of this work. On these plans, when finally prepared, will be shown every tomb, grave-stone and marker, each with a given number, so that by reference every monument or stone now in existence can be accurately located. From now on the city will have a complete inventory of such matters as are in its possession or control.

This will answer many perplexing questions which may arise in the future. The lack of old records and want of a system of preserving such as have existed, has in days past caused much unfavorable comment among a large class of people who, from family tradition, historical interest or other cause have shown great interest in the old burial-grounds.

The records of Evergreen Cemetery, originally in a very confused and unreliable condition, have been brought into satisfactory and reasonable shape.

A new plan of the cemetery has been made, showing all lots and single graves laid out up to the present time.

In addition to this, a plan book containing a plan of every lot purchased is being prepared.

A copy of the Mt. Hope Cemetery record of interments is being prepared for the card catalogue, that the city office of the department may have a complete record of the interments made in every cemetery in its charge, which records will be available to the public.

The card catalogue of Mt. Hope interments is for protection against loss by fire or other cause; it is deemed unwise to have only one set of records of such an important cemetery as Mt. Hope.

The cards prepared for the card catalogues in the old burial-grounds, contain an accurate copy of the inscriptions on the stones, and such other information as has been collected from other sources pertaining to the bodies interred or the stones themselves.

The cards copied from the inscriptions in the old burial-grounds number fifteen thousand (15,000). The cards required for the catalogue pertaining to Mt. Hope Cemetery will number sixty thousand (60,000), and those of Evergreen about five thousand (5,000).

Work is still going forward on the history of the old burial-grounds, and data is being collected from all sources pertaining to the same. To this end the old town and city records have been examined, local histories consulted, and much information from various channels compiled, by which it is hoped to satisfactorily answer the many inquiries addressed to the department concerning these matters.

The history of the Granary Burial-ground has been completed, and is made a part of this report. The histories of the other ancient grounds will be published as completed, either in the annual reports of this department or as separate matter. It is believed their historical importance warrants such publication, and the information will be acceptable to the public.

It is gratifying to note that the history of Copp's Hill Burial-ground, published as a part of the last annual report, has received widespread and favorable attention, not alone in our own city but throughout the country.

Copies of the history were requested for the public libraries of London, Berlin and Paris, and letters in reference to the same have been received from all parts of the United States.

It is a pleasure to record that this Commission has been together without change in its members for almost five years. During that time it has organized the department and brought about many changes for the better control and management of the cemeteries and the ancient burial-grounds under its control.

This can be specially noticed in Mt. Hope Cemetery, which has been changed in point of its buildings and plant to a very marked extent.

The old and inadequate greenhouses of wooden construction have been replaced by modern iron frame houses, and when the plant is finished, according to contracts already awarded, will be the most complete of its kind in the country, affording ample and convenient room for the raising of all the plants and shrubs needed in the embellishment of Mt. Hope and the cemeteries throughout the city.

A stone chapel has been erected, and plans are now under way and the money provided for a new administration building and gateway, which will do away with the old entrance and present wooden constructed office. The administration building will combine with office purposes comfortable waiting and retiring rooms and fireproof vaults for the protection of the valuable records of Mt. Hope Cemetery.

A new stable and sheds, which take the place of the old barn constructed in 1849, cover a semi-circle in the rear portion of the grounds, and meet the requirements of the department in every way. The trustees gave much consideration to the details of these buildings.

The plans were drawn by Edward F. Maher, Esq., architect, who superintended the construction of the buildings.

The stable, fitted with every modern appliance from a sanitary and convenient standpoint, provides accommodation for fourteen horses, a carriage room 30x50, storage, harness and watchman's rooms.

Adjoining the stable is a large shed for housing materials. A range of open sheds connects this building with the blacksmith and carpenter shops. A comfortable waiting-room for the men working in the cemetery has been provided with facilities for warming their food at noon.

The carpenter work on these buildings was let under contract for $9,815 to J. H. Burt & Company, builders, of Boston.

In other directions, the cemetery is up to the modern standard, and at the present time compares well with cemeteries about us under private control.

There is still needed a fence on Paine street, and a proper division wall should be erected between the grounds and those of Calvary Cemetery.

LAND AVAILABLE IN MT. HOPE FOR FUTURE USES.

From July 31, 1857, to February 1, 1902, the receipts for the sale of lots and graves, and the amount received for the perpetual care of lots in Mt. Hope, were $449,070.86.

Lots	$286,543 79
Graves	88,817 00
Perpetual Care Fund	73,710 07

In the front of the cemetery, facing Walk Hill street and extending about twelve hundred (1,200) feet thereon, is an open space comprising about twenty-five (25) acres.

The chapel occupies a portion of this piece opposite the main entrance; the Masonic lots and some private lots have been laid out at the farther end from the entrance gate. This piece, situated in the front of the cemetery, is in the most conspicuous portion, and has been kept open for future development and ornamental purposes.

It cannot be utilized until it is drained and graded.

On Walk Hill street, in the front of the cemetery, is a section of about three (3) acres, situated between the green-houses and the Superintendent's house.

The undeveloped land situated on the northwest side of Walnut avenue comprises an area of about twenty (20) acres. This land, graded and laid out in burial lots, with the necessary paths and avenues constructed, would represent a value of five hundred forty-four thousand five hundred dollars ($544,500), and a prospective addition to the perpetual care fund of two hundred seventeen thousand eight hundred dollars ($217,800).

The land situated at the corner of Walk Hill and Harvard streets, made available by the removal of barns and sheds, has already been referred to.

Near the ladies' waiting-room an area of about one acre and a half ($1\frac{1}{2}$) has been left undeveloped, as the same is a solid ledge.

In front of the receiving tomb, and on the two main avenues of the cemetery, is a triangular piece kept open for ornamental purposes.

Near the back gate is a piece of low land, swampy and full of rocks, comprising about five (5) acres, which is undeveloped.

This land at the present time is useless, and to make it available for burial purposes would have to be drained and filled in. While this might be done, owing to the swampy nature of the ground, unless the city controlled the adjoining tracts and could drain the same, it could not properly be recommended for burial purposes. This would be an undertaking of considerable expense and of doubtful value.

EVERGREEN CEMETERY.

Evergreen Cemetery is situated on the Commonwealth avenue extension, near Chestnut Hill Reservoir, Brighton.

The custodian is Mr. Charles P. Harding.

The land in this cemetery was bought in 1848 by the selectmen of Brighton from the heirs of William Aspinwall, for the sum of four thousand twenty-three and seventy-five one-hundredths dollars ($4,023.75), and was laid out as a cemetery of the town of Brighton, and remained under the control of said town until it was annexed to Boston in 1873, and has since been managed by the city.

There are at present two hundred and eighty-four (284) lots and four hundred and fifty (450) single graves.

The cemetery was not originally laid out in a proper manner, nor any considerable portion of the land prepared for burial purposes.

The walks and avenues are of superficial construction, and need continual and profitless patching. The front of the cemetery on Commonwealth avenue should be suitably treated and made more attractive.

There is an active demand for single graves and small lots, which are prepared as needed. A large tract of land could be profitably prepared for this purpose, and thereby save much for the city, and a special appropriation should be provided to develop and beautify this cemetery, which is located in one of the most picturesque portions of our city.

This department, since its formation, has constantly and persistently asked for the necessary funds for this purpose.

All that our appropriation enables us to do is to keep the grounds in condition, care for lots, and perform the labor of making interments and developing such ground as is needed for burial purposes.

No money is provided looking to permanent and needed improvements. The grounds lack a proper waiting-room and decent toilet facilities. The cemetery, as maintained by the city, is not to its credit, and far below the standard set by private cemeteries in several important respects.

These recommendations have been made by this department since its organization, the need of a special appropriation to carry out the recommendations has been persistently urged before the Finance Committee, and nothing has been left undone by us to bring these matters to the attention of the city.

The cost of maintaining Evergreen Cemetery for the past year has been $5,305.78.

THE OLD BURIAL-GROUNDS.

Copp's Hill is kept open daily for accommodation of visitors from May to November.

Granary and King's Chapel and Eustis street, Roxbury, are open Sundays during seven months.

The Granary, King's Chapel and Central Burial-grounds will be opened at any time on application at the office of the Cemetery Department.

None of the old grounds are open, except the same is in charge of some one representing the department.

The old burial-grounds have been kept in good condition, the grass cut, trees cared for, tombs repaired, and such improvements made as are warranted by our appropriation.

The old burial-grounds annually prove a greater charge upon the city. Time destroys the walls, disintegrates the foundations of tombs and monuments, and is rapidly obliterating the inscriptions which mark the burial places of many thousands. Repairs are made so far as our appropriation warrants, though much more could be done would finances permit.

Many citizens feel that the city should do something towards the preservation of the inscriptions on the old stones. This could only be done by a re-cutting of the worn lettering on many slabs and monuments.

The department believes this should be undertaken, and although the expense of doing such work in all of the old grounds would be considerable, yet a part could be done from year to year; this would arrest an entire obliteration of the inscriptions, and calls for no immediate large appropriation. While these stones are private property, it is believed their historical importance would justify such preservation.

The old yards, containing bodies of many illustrious and memorable persons, are of great interest and tender solicitation to our people here and abroad. It is right that the city government should spare no expense within reason in the care and perpetuation of monuments which mark with distinct emphasis the early history of Boston, and point out the final resting places of many of the men and women who laid the foundation for the city's strength and greatness. These ancient burial-grounds are the most prominent memorials of our municipality's struggles and labors.

The employees stationed at Mt. Hope and on the pay-roll charged thereto, have done the necessary work in the care of the Granary, King's Chapel, Central Burial-ground on Common, Westerly and Walter streets grounds, West Roxbury.

We again call attention to the number of interments that have been made in tombs in some of the old grounds in the crowded sections of the city.

Several of these tombs are used by undertakers who inter bodies therein, and from which the City of Boston obtains but a small revenue. Such use this department is powerless to interfere with, as these undertakers are the owners of the tombs.

The number of interments of this nature during the past year amount to twenty-two.

None of these tombs are air-tight or in proper condition to allow interments therein without a distinct danger to the public health. We feel that if such interments are to be tolerated by the city government that at least the tombs should be reconstructed and made air-tight, thereby diminishing the danger to our citizens of possible contagion.

The number of interments made in the private tombs by citizens are very few as compared to those made by undertakers.

We trust that an investigation will be made of this subject, and a city ordinance passed restricting the matter in some definite way.

The cost of maintaining the old grounds for the past year has amounted to $9,613.25.

WORK PERFORMED.

Dorchester North Ground.—The office building and fence on Stoughton street were repaired and painted.

Dorchester South Ground.—A new fence 771 feet in length was erected on the north and west sides of the grounds.

Bunker Hill Ground.—Three hundred seventy-one square yards of concrete walks were repaired; tool-house, fence and signs were painted.

Phipps Street Ground.—The walls of eight tombs having collapsed, were rebuilt, and twelve tombs were repaired; tool-house was painted, and 224 square yards of concrete walks were repaired.

Granary Ground.—Granite wall was repointed; two tombs were repaired; the arches of twelve tombs were repaired; twenty-six feet of brick wall rebuilt; 174 grave-stones were repaired, and ten tablets reset.

Copp's Hill Ground.—One hundred fifty-seven feet of wall repointed and two tombs repaired.

King's Chapel Ground.—Two tombs repaired and twenty-six grave-stones repaired.

Hawes Ground.—Seven tombs and wall repaired.

Bennington Street Ground.—Two hundred and sixty-three palings were removed from graves; graves in the new section were numbered, and that part of the grounds, consisting of about two acres, in which interments were made, was regraded, mounds levelled and the ground seeded. The fence fronting on Bennington street was painted.

Central Ground.—Reset granite on City tomb and one private tomb repaired; much labor and attention was required in caring for the trees on these grounds.

Westerly Ground.—Front wall pointed. Much improvement was made at the entrance to the ground and around the Billings tomb by Mr. Mackintosh, without expense to the department.

THE CITY CEMETERY.

An appropriation was asked and received ($15,000) for additional land for the burial of unclaimed bodies.

The need of this was imperative, and the conditions from which we sought relief have been fully set forth in the annual reports of the past two years, and in several communications sent to the City Council.

Land adjoining the present City Cemetery was purchased to meet this need.

A detailed account of the expenditure of this appropriation will be found elsewhere.

The reason and need of purchase was fully set forth and explained in the last annual report of the department on pages 13 et seq.

The land provided has met the imperative needs of free burial which the city is bound to provide in a certain class of cases, thereby satisfying the condition of the statute creating the department, which states that it shall provide a free burial place for the inhabitants of the City of Boston without any charge whatsoever.

It was early found in the history of the cemetery that this method of burial was not satisfactory to a large class of people, making as it did a pauper burial, i.e., a burial for which there was no charge. This led some forty years ago to the setting aside of a portion of the cemetery for a "City Lot."

This system was inaugurated and intended to meet the requirements of people of very moderate circumstances, who did not wish to avail themselves of the provision made for the inhabitants of the City of Boston where no compensation was to be paid, and who could not afford the purchase of a grave.

The Trustees of Mt. Hope Cemetery gave a burial right for five dollars ($5.00) — the cost of an interment — in this lot, which removed the burial from one free from any charge therefor to a burial for which a consideration was paid.

This method furnished a mere burial right for no definite period, other bodies were buried in the same grave, and no ownership of land or right of control was granted with this lot. No decoration of the grave by monument or marker could be allowed from the fact that other bodies were interred in the same grave; in other words, there was no right of ownership.

This is a system which may have been fair, and in a certain sense proper; this department, however, felt it was misleading, and, in many instances, misunderstood by the persons who took advantage of its provisions, and believed they were purchasing more than a mere right of interment.

Early in January of 1902 this lot (containing then 17,896 bodies) was substantially full. At a meeting of the Board held on January 9, 1902, the following votes were passed, and, in accordance with the requirements of the same, a notice was sent to the undertakers of the City of Boston apprising them of this decision:

Voted, That, whereas it appears that the City Lot, so called, in Mt. Hope Cemetery is substantially filled, and whereas adequate provision has been made by the setting apart of land for pauper burials, the General Superintendent is hereby instructed that when said lot shall be filled to cease providing the right of interment (without giving the usual receipt that is given to a purchaser of a $15.00 grave) for the cost of $5.00 in any portion of Mt. Hope Cemetery, and that hereafter all interments in said cemetery shall be made in lots or graves owned by some person or in land designated by the department for city paupers.

Voted, That notices apprising the undertakers of this vote, to take effect February 1, 1902, be sent.

NOTICE.

January 15, 1902.

DEAR SIR, — You are hereby notified that, in accordance with the order of the Cemetery Department, on February 1, 1902, and from that time on, no further burials shall be made in the City Lot, so called, at Mt. Hope Cemetery, but that thereafter all interments in said cemetery shall be made in lots or graves owned by some person or in land designated by the department for city paupers.

MOUNT HOPE CEMETERY.

Respectfully,

ALBERT E. SMITH,

Secretary.

This department has realized for some time it was right to put an end to this form of burial which was misleading, and really gave nothing to the purchaser better than a free burial, but inasmuch as the system had been inaugurated for many years it did not seem wise to make any change until the land set aside for this purpose was used, when it was deemed advisable to take a definite stand.

We know that great effort is made by friends and relatives to keep their dead from a free burial and obtain a final resting-place over which they can have control, and the department has supplied so much of its land as was available to these people for a reasonable consideration.

The area of Mt. Hope is limited and must, in accordance with the provisions of the Statute, be divided between "suitable lots or other sub-divisions for family or other burials with necessary paths and avenues and land for a public burial-ground for the use of the inhabitants of said Boston, free from any charge therefor."

Demand for graves for a small consideration is very great, and Mt. Hope is one of the few cemeteries in this vicinity that supplies single graves at a price within the purchasing abilities of citizens of moderate means, and now that the City Lot is full, the demands of many citizens will make exhaustive inroads upon the remaining land available for inexpensive graves in Mt. Hope.

We believe the city should establish the policy of furnishing its unfortunate citizens with single graves for the consideration of $5, and that for that purpose provision should be made to enable this department to carry into effect such suggested policy.

We know this would be greatly appreciated by many of our citizens who desire to save from a free burial their relatives and friends. There is not enough available land in Mt. Hope to provide for this class of burial except for a very short time, and it might be wise for the City Council to discuss the advisability of establishing a burial-ground adjacent to Mt. Hope Cemetery for the meeting of this demand. Land so situated could be cared for and managed by the employees stationed at Mt. Hope without unreasonable additional expense.

The Trustees recommend that such land, if acquired, be separated into sections with separate burial locations to any denomination or religion whose custom requires it; and that a part thereof be consecrated for burial purposes, in accordance with the requirements of the Catholic faith; giving equal and impartial rights to all religions.

We make no estimate at this time covering this, feeling it is a matter which properly should be left to the City Council to determine and provide for, if in its wisdom it believes this recommendation should be carried into effect.

Inasmuch as the city has given a burial right to many thousands of people for $5, it can afford to continue the policy on a more proper and liberal basis, and for the same amount give the title to a grave, which at the election of its owner, could be utilized for the interment of the bodies of two adults or four children.

The filling of the so-called City Lot leaves a class of people unprovided for, although to meet this demand the department is laying out an area of land and offering single graves at the rate of ten dollars ($10). As single graves in Mt. Hope have not been sold for less than fifteen dollars ($15), we do not feel warranted in making further discount unless additional land and authority to do so is forthcoming.

Burials within the city limits is at best a perplexing problem, and demands the most careful and intelligent investigation at the hands of the City Council.

Other cities have made advanced strides in the direction of separating burial-grounds so far as possible from the living, and from the investigations made by this department of methods in other large municipalities, we feel there are many things which the City of Boston might well change in this important respect.

It is most unfortunate that Mt. Hope, in which centres the interests of so many thousands of our citizens, is left without reasonable facilities of reaching it. The nearest car line is on Blue Hill avenue, a distance of one-half mile from the cemetery. From time to time the department has tried to interest the Boston Elevated Railway Company in providing some facilities, but with ill success.

This year it is proposed, if it can be practically arranged, to have a barge connect with the car route on Blue Hill avenue during the summer months, and make hourly trips to and from the cemetery.

Your trustees have endeavored at all times to protect the interests of persons interested in the cemeteries under their charge. They have given liberally of their time in meeting the various questions which have arisen, and in planning an administration which it is hoped has reflected credit upon the city.

The department deals with many people in sorrow, who should receive the most kindly consideration. Rights claimed by many in the old grounds are, at the best, vague and uncertain, and their adjustment in fairness to the city and to the claimant is oft-times perplexing, and without precedent.

We believe, however, that every one interested in the department has received fair and proper treatment, and the department has received from us the attention which it properly deserves.

To ex-Mayor Hart we wish to record our appreciation of his interest in the department, and of the many thoughtful and beneficial acts which that interest prompted.

The appropriation for the past two years was larger than heretofore, and enabled the doing of important work.

We look for the continued coöperation and interest heretofore shown us by the City Council, which has ever been most reasonably disposed to the department and its work.

Respectfully submitted,

J. ALBERT BRACKETT, Chairman.

NOTE. — The department acknowledges with gratitude the assistance received in the preparation of the histories of Copp's Hill and the Granary Burial-Grounds from C. W. Ernst, Esq., who has given freely of his time, contributed much valuable historical matter, and pointed out many important details which, from a careful and analytical study of the records of our city, have come to his knowledge.

ENTRANCE TO GRANARY BURIAL-GROUND.

THE GRANARY BURIAL GROUND.

An epitome of the history of the Granary Burial Ground and of its roll of famous tenants is wrought in the inscription on its gates.

On the left hand gate we read :

FIRST MAYOR of BOSTON.

On the right hand gate is this inscription :

and ROBERT TREAT PAINE,
Signers of the Declaration of Independence;

This burial ground situated on Tremont street, between Park Street Church and the Tremont Building, at the corner of Tremont and Beacon streets, is the third oldest cemetery in Boston. It is of almost the same date as Copp's Hill, being established about 1660. The ordinance of 1833, to discontinue burials in the old ground for a time, refers to the Granary as well as to Copp's Hill. In common with Copp's Hill, the Granary owes its establishment to the incapacity of King's Chapel to contain all the dead of the growing town.

It was generally called the South Burying Ground or place until about 1737, when the town granary was moved from the head of what is now Park street and set up on the site of the present Park Street Church. The granary when built in 1729 stood in the Common, where the City has built sanitariums (13 Boston Rec. 189; Price map of 1743; 12 Boston Rec. 159). May 3, 1737, it was voted in meeting of Selectmen that the "Granary be fixed and set at a distance of twelve feet from the wall of the Burying place." Later it was occasionally referred to as the Central or Middle ground, being situated midway between the King's Chapel ground on the north and the Boylston Street ground on the south. In May 1830, it was proposed to call it "Franklin Cemetery" but the name never acquired currency. The term South Burial Ground as applied to the Granary Burial Ground lasted from about 1660 to about 1756, when the new burial ground corner of Tremont and Boylston Streets began to receive the appellation. In 1759 the Town Records (vol. 16, p. 27) call it "the South Burial place on the back of the Workhouse." The term Granary Burial Ground is modern. We have no exact quotation before 1795 (27 Boston Rec. 274). The granary served as such from 1728 to 1784, and after it was given to other uses, the term "Granary Burial Ground" came up, and still lasts, illustrating the tenacity or conservatism of our folk speech.

At present, it is bounded about 327 feet southeast on Tremont street; 297 feet southwest on the Park street side; 210 feet northwest; and 262 feet northeast. It was at first a part of the Common, which once took in all the area bounded by Tremont, Beacon and Park streets. Its northerly boundary toward Beacon is the same as originally made in the latter part of the seventeenth century.

Originally part of the Common, the territory between Tremont, Beacon and Park streets, was soon devoted to special uses when the first pound in Boston was established in the present burial ground, near the present Tremont building, not far from Tremont street (2 Bost. Rec. 17, 18, 40; 3 Suff. Deeds 45), and when about an acre to the north of the pound was granted to John Wilson, the pastor, who sold it in 1661 to James Oliver. The original Wilson lot, mentioned in the Book of Possessions, is now covered by the Tremont building.

Beacon street, from Tremont to Somerset, was established on March 30, 1640 (2 Bost. Rec. 52); from Somerset to Park under the Town order of 20 : 6 : 1660, fully carried out 25 : 6 : 1662.

Tremont street, from School to Park, is mentioned in the Book of Possessions, about 1645, as "the streete on the west" of Zaccheus Bosworth's property, now occupied by the Parker House.

Park street was established under the order of the Town Meeting adopted on March 14, 1737/8 (12 Bost. Rec. 191).

The irregular square bounded by these streets was originally a part of the Common. At an early day the pound was established there, "the fould keeper" and "ye fould" being mentioned in the Town Records of May 13, 1637.

This pound was near the northeast corner of the burial ground, just back of the southern projection from the Tremont building on Tremont street. The northern and eastern lines of the pound still exist.

The land from the pound to Beacon street, and up to the present Athenæum lot, about an acre, was the garden of John Wilson, the first pastor of the First Church, who sold it in 1661 (Book of Poss., 3 Suff. Deeds 489). It was soon cut into house lots.

The original almshouse lot included the Athenæum lot, and the gore or triangle, numbered 8 and 10 Beacon street, was given to Mary Willis on March 11, 1660/61. It was reduced by the change in the line of Beacon street, and a description of the reduced lot appears in the Town Records of 22 : 12 : 1668/69.

The irregular little lot between the pound and Tremont street, still to be seen, and originally covering 745 square feet, was given on November 28, 1664, to Stephen Barrett (7 Bost. Rec. 23 ; 7 Suff. Deeds 44).

The House of Correction, or bridewell, could have been established on Park street, below the almshouse, by the County of Suffolk, under the consent given in the town meeting of December 27, 1720 (8 Bost. Rec. 148).

In 1662, the almshouse, corner of Park and Beacon streets, was built ; in 1721, the House of Correction, or Bridewell, lower down on Park street ; the Granary in 1728 ; to the north and northwest, private lots were granted and dwellings erected after 1660. There is some doubt as to the establishment of the bridewell or house of correction. An outbuilding of the almshouse may have been so used. By 1722, as shown in Bonner's map of that date, the land fronting Beacon street had been set off in house lots on nearly the present lines.

Tremont street, however, was scarcely more than an open lane up to the eighteenth century, with but few houses on the eastern side facing the great common field and the cemetery. Originally it was called all sorts of names, until in 1708 the town adopted the official title of Common street. Until after the revolution, Park street was still but a roadway. It first appears laid out on Norman's map, published in 1789 ; and was then known as Century or Sentry street, and sometimes Century street. Beacon street was ordered laid out March 30th, 1640 (o.s.) which is also, in a measure, the birthday of Boston Common, but did not take its present form until 1662.

The records as to the Granary are incomplete and fragmentary, though it is referred to in many ways at a very early period of the town's history.

On May 15, 1717, the selectmen were voted authority, at their discretion, "to Enlarge the South burying place by takeing in part of the High way on the Easterly side thereof, so as that thereby ye said Highway be not thereby too much straightened."

On April 29, 1719, nothing apparently having been done, this time it was ordered, that the South Burying Place should be enlarged next the Common or Training Field. The precise extent of the addition is doubtful, the probability being that some of the graves extended into the present area of the Common, as was evidenced by the fact that several gravestones were disinterred by the workmen digging the foundations of the Brewer Fountain in 1868. In 1720, the historic pound was removed from the burial ground, near Tremont street, to what is now Park street.

During the year 1720-21 fifteen tombs were built and licensed. Vide 13, Rec. Comm. R., p. 18. They ran in a line parallel to Park street, on the southwest side, beginning at the upper corner. Six were added in 1722, extending east, the first being that of the Hancocks, and by 1725 the line was complete.

In 1727, a new range was begun from the corner, following Tremont street on the east side to No. 30 and 13 northerly. This row was finished, and the line carried irregularly around what was then the corner of the Tremont House garden, as far as number 80. In 1739 five more tombs were added. No records are extant of any grants until 1810, and few or no tombs were probably built meanwhile. In that and the following three or four years, twenty-six tombs were built on the northerly side, and the same number on the westerly.

Beside these tombs, bordering on the sides, there are sixty others within the yard, of which the city owns one, set apart for the interment of children. Many tombs are not under regular grant and these usually contain the remains of ministers and prominent men of the town.

In 1807 permission was granted William Payne and his sisters to erect tombs in the yards of their Beacon street estates, west of the Athenæum, and bordering on the burial ground, to be entered from the latter. Of these tombs, despite the fact that they were situated under stables and outhouses, nine were built and purchased by such leading citizens as David Sears, John Gore, Uriah Coting, Edward Blake and others.

The records of the selectmen contain numerous grants of tombs, with sundry conditions as to the manner of building and maintenance. The introduction to the first fifteen grants runs : —

"April 13, 1721. Voted, That whereas the Town of Boston at a Publicke Town Meeting on the 29th Day of aprill, 1719, Ordered that the South Burying place should be Inlarged next the Common or Training field, In persuance of which vote or order, The selectmen in the year 1720 did inlarge the said Burying Place, At which time sundry of the Inhabitants of the said Town to the Number of fifteen desired Liberty to Erect new Toombs, on the South Line of the said Burying place, which the selectmen Granted, on Condition they would cary up and maintain, a brick wall, on said Line at the End of their Toombs, which said line of Toombs begins at the upper or West Corner of the faid Burying Place next the Alm's House."

In a description of Boston written in the Columbian Magazine at Philadelphia, in 1787, among the chief buildings mentioned were "a workhouse; a bridewell; a public granary." All these three, and especially the last, are closely connected with the Granary Burial Ground.

In the Provincial days, the question of the 'grain supply was of great importance to the town. Grain was frequently scarce, and but few of the inhabitants were so wealthy as not to be affected thereby. On December 29, 1718, the selectmen reported that in provision against such scarcity they had "purchased 10,000 weight of bread, at 40 shill p hundred for the supply of ye Inhabit^{ts}." It was ordered sold during one month in small quantities to such as desired to purchase. On October 16, 1733, also a contract was made with two of the selectmen, John Jeffries and David Colson, to erect a granary or "Meal House" in the North End "on a piece of land belonging to the Town near the North Mill," the cost not to exceed £100.

The granary in the southern part of the town, after which the cemetery is called, was built in 1729 near the foot of Park street. In 1737 it was moved to the present site of Park Street Church as a result of the addition of the workhouse to the neighboring town buildings. There had been for some years an agitation for a new workhouse, but the project had been deferred on account of the expense. A subscription in 1736 contributed £4368, given by 123 persons. A committee appointed to consider the matter reported on March 29, 1737, recommending a location near the granary, while the latter building was to be removed to the corner of Tremont street.

It was a long, wooden building, framed with oak timbers, of plain and gloomy appearance, with a capacity of 12,000 bushels. The grain was purchased and stored each year by the town's agents, and sold to the needy at an advance of ten per cent. in price. The keeper of this granary for a long period was Francis Willoughby. In the troublous days, prior to the breaking out of the Revolution, the granary was kept well stored until the end of the Revolutionary War. In 1795 the town voted to sell the buildings on condition of an early removal. It remained tenanted by various tradesmen, refreshment stands, etc., until 1809, when it was removed to Commercial Point, Dorchester, and altered into a hotel.

Further up on Park street were the almhouse, workhouse, and bridewell, built of brick. The almhouse was erected on the corner of Beacon street in 1686, and was a two-storied building, with gambrel roof and projecting gable. Later a wing was added. It remained in use until the opening of the almhouse on Leverett street in 1802.

The workhouse, the subscription for which has already been mentioned, was erected for the detention of the vagrant and dissolute in 1738. It was somewhat larger than the almshouse, being 140 feet long, with gables, and also two-storied.

The bridewell, a combined house of correction and insane asylum, was smaller than the other two buildings and stood in the centre of Park street. In front were two of the three trees growing on the Common in 1722, according to Bonner's map. There was also a Bull house standing close to the bounds of the yard, for the Records of the Selectmen Feb. 25, 1735, state that "Liberty is granted to M^r. John Kneeland to break up the Ground in the South Burying Place between the Bull House and the north east corner of it, in order for the Building Five Tombs." This Bull house was in reality but a shed used temporarily for the stabling of the town's bulls.

Not far away, on the corner of Hamilton place and Tremont street, was a manufacturing house erected by the province for the encouragement of spinning, etc. This was demolished in 1806. In 1783 it was voted, "That Part of Common Street between the Grainery and the North end of the Burying Ground Adjoining . . . be the Places for the Wood Markets for all the Wood brought by land into this Town for Sale."

These were the rather prosaic and dismal surroundings of the early cemetery. Dingy buildings and ill-kept fences were all that Park street had to show a century since. Many of the townspeople, on their way to the Common or the Training Field, were often moved to generous pity by begging hands thrust through the almshouse fence and by the appeals of the poor and orphans within.

The Granary burial ground was used as a pasture lot for that purpose to John Woodmansey in 1678 (7 Boston Rec. 120, 204).

April 26, 1703, George Ripley was appointed to take care of watering the Bulls "and to put them by night in the burying place." In 1713 "ye 21th of Aprill, The Selectmen have agreed according to James Williams' proposals to Lett unto him the grass of Ye South burying place" for "Fourty Shillings" he to make good all damages "w^{ch} may happen to the graves by reason of his Cows going there."

It appears from the town's records Feb. 28, 1727, "Ordered That the Town Treasurer abate mess^{rs} Ezekel Lewis & James Williams Twenty Six Shillings and Eight pence being one third part of the Last years Rent of the South Burying Place, by Reason they Lost part of the feed the fence being Down Some time."

At a meeting of the Selectmen June 2nd 1756 Voted: "To order the Sextons to Stubb up some Poisonous Weeds in the Burying grounds near the Alms House."

May 17, 1758, At a meeting of the selectmen "John Ramstead hierd the Herbage of the South Burying grounds for One year at three pounds Six Shillings & Eight pence p Annum."

Trees were ordered planted along all the cemeteries in 1712. (11 Boston Rec. 157).

As the town expanded southward, however, some attempt was made to beautify the neighborhood, mainly by the planting of trees. In March 1733, it was voted that "the row of trees already planted on the Common should be taken care of by the Selectmen," and that "another row be planted at a suitable distance from the former, and a row of posts be set up with a rail on top of them." This fence was to extend "through the Common from the Burying Place to Colonel Fitch's fence, leaving openings at the several streets and lanes." In 1737 the Common was separated from the Granary by a fence running up the hill; and two years later, one was ordered "set up" to Beacon street. A fence similar to the former was maintained until 1836, when the iron fence designed by Richard Upjohn was built around the Common at an expense of $82,160.

In the fall of 1784, a third row of trees was planted on the Common, inside the other two, by Oliver Smith and others.

The greatest gratitude is due, however, for the planting of the famous row of beautiful elms on "Paddock's Mall," in front of the burying ground. These were set-out in 1762 by Capt. Adino Paddock and Mr. John Ballard. The former was a coach builder, and kept his shop at what is now the corner of Winter and Tremont streets, where formerly lived Daniel Maud, the schoolmaster, on a lot granted in 1637. Mr. Ballard was a public spirited resident of the North End.

The mall in ancient days was about 350 feet long, and before the "straitening" of 1717 comprised part of the present cemetery. The erection of the cemetery fence further narrowed the walk, which at first lay so near the highway that the footpath barely protected the roots of the trees from passing vehicles. Later another walk was added on the street edge, some inches lower than the inner path, and separated from it by a curbstone. Along this walk in the old days, as well as within the Common, stood refreshment booths set up on holidays.

Captain Paddock's elms were imported from England as saplings and were kept in a nursery at Milton until capable of being transplanted. They grew to a noble size and retained their verdure five or six weeks longer than the native elms on the Common. They are supposed to have extended from Park Street Church northerly to the larch tree that grew in the cemetery over the victims of the Boston Massacre, and were probably about sixteen in number.

These old elms, long the favorite resort of the birds and the gray squirrels, were narrowly threatened with destruction in 1860 from the march of trade; and in 1870 but eleven, already infirm with age, were standing. Since then, they have all, despite indignant protests, fallen unfortunate victims to the modernizing of Tremont street. The largest stood nearest the Tremont House, and in 1870, as told by Shurtleff, measured sixteen feet ten inches in circumference at the sidewalk.

Captain Paddock took the most precious care of them while he lived. It is related of Jacob Kuhn, for many years the honest and vigilant messenger of the State House, that "it was he who, when a young lad, was passing along the Granary Burying-ground, shortly after Mr. Paddock had caused a row of young trees to be set out on the sidewalk. He took hold of one of those slender saplings, and thoughtlessly began to shake it. In a moment Mr. Paddock darted out from his house opposite and served him as he had served the tree." In the celebration of the repeal of the Stamp Act on May 19, 1766, the elms on the mall, as well as the Liberty Tree, were decorated with lanterns.

In the "Massachusetts Gazette Extraordinary" of May 22 of the same year, and in the "Evening Post" of May 26, Captain Paddock was forced to insert the following notice :

" The Row of Trees opposite Mr. Paddock's shop have of late received Damage by persons inadvertently breaking off the limbs of the most flourishing. The Youth of both sexes are requested, as they pass that way, not to molest them ; those trees being planted at a considerable expense, for an Ornament and Service to the Town. Not one of the trees was injured the Night of General Rejoicing, but last Night several limbs were broke off."

Again, on August 26, 1771, Captain Paddock advertised as follows in the "Evening Post" :

"A GUINEA REWARD

Will be given by the subscriber to any one who shall inform him of the Person or Persons that on Thursday night last cut and hacked one of the Trees opposite his House in Long Acre."

"As the said Row of Trees were planted and cultivated at a considerable expense, it is hoped that all persons will do their Endeavour to discountenance said Practices.

ADINO PADDOCK."

Long Acre was a popular name for Tremont street between School and Winter streets, because it was largely occupied by coach builders, like Long Acre in London. The outrage may have been due to the fact that Paddock, who, out of respect for London's famous carriage-building district, had given the name of Long Acre to that part of Tremont street between Winter street and King's Chapel, was a Tory. At the time of the Evacuation, five years later, he left the town forever, and went to Halifax. At all events, during the Revolution the elms suffered no injury from the ruthless British soldiery. It is said that many years after the Revolution, Paddock wrote to a friend in Boston expressing his gratitude that his favorite trees had come unscathed through the Revolution.

They also survived, with more or less damage, the great gales of 1815, 1860, and 1869. When the stone foundation was laid for the iron fence built in front of the cemetery in 1840 at a cost of $5,000, and when Tremont street was paved with brick, their roots suffered seriously and their nourishment was much diminished ; but they lived through it all with little impairment of their grace and beauty.

GRANARY BURIAL-GROUND.

Captain Paddock, their sponsor, was one of the commanders of the train of artillery, and also served many years as sealer of leather. He stayed a year in Halifax after the Evacuation, then embarked for England. In 1781 he became an officeholder in the Isle of Jersey and there died March 25, 1804, aged 76.

The trees within the burying-ground itself were largely provided by private subscription, and were planted in the spring of 1830. Since that date, there have been various additions made to the trees and shrubbery, and most of the paths have been laid out, as well as a foolish symmetry attained by rearranging the gravestones. — Gleaner.

The Granary was less fitted naturally than Copp's Hill for a burial-ground. It continually required draining, as is evidenced by many orders, petitions and votes set forth in the town's records, there being many underground springs which made the turf damp and boggy. At the time of the moving of the Granary in 1737, the tombs were filled with water by the temporary cessation of drainage, while the old drain, which had emptied upon the Common, was being replaced by a new one emptying into the common sewer. Remains of this old drain were uncovered in 1868, when the foundations of the Brewer fountain were being laid.

The old Bellingham tomb, near the westerly wall, given to Governor James Sullivan, when the Bellingham family became extinct, was found by the latter, when he sought to repair it, about a century ago, partly filled with water.

Overcrowding and neglect marked the history of the Granary, as well as of the other cemeteries of Boston. In 1740 a petition was presented to the selectmen from John Chambers and others, grave-diggers, declaring that "the old and South Burying Places are so filled with Dead Bodies, they are obliged oft times to bury them four deep, praying it may be laid before the Town, for their consideration." At their leisure, the authorities began to look about for a new burying-ground, and on October 11, 1754, selected, and in 1756 purchased, "a portion of Colonel Fitch's pasture at the bottom of the Common." The tract decided upon embraced about two acres, and then belonged to Andrew Oliver, Jr. This was the South Burying-ground, later known successively as the Common and Central Ground.

Interments continued, however, in the Granary and also in King's Chapel, amid complete indifference on the part of the town, and with very disagreeable results a century or more later.

In 1795, attention was again drawn to the crowded condition of the two Tremont-street cemeteries. A committee appointed to consider means of discontinuing the opening of graves in the Granary and King's Chapel, reported on November 6, 1795, that "having consulted physicians of the town, they find it to be, in their opinion, that the health of the inhabitants is in danger from the crowded state of these grounds, and the exhalations which must frequently arise from the opening of graves thereon. In addition to which, they find it is almost impossible to open new graves without disturbing the relics of the dead already interred. From an equal regard to health, for a decent respect for the living and the dead, they recommend to the inhabitants to adopt the following measures:

"First: That no graves or new tombs shall be opened or built in either the Common or Chapel Burying-ground, after May 1st next.

"Second: As the South Burying-ground is already sufficiently large for the present accommodation of the inhabitants, and will admit of such enlargement, that the Selectmen be empowered to allot to any inhabitant who may apply for the same, sufficient ground for erecting a tomb in the ground, and enlarge the said South Burying-ground in a direction westerly whenever the public convenience shall in their judgment require it."

The report was accepted, but interments in the tombs still continued, although no new graves were opened.

In 1879 the city council sat upon the matter. Numerous objections to closing the tombs were made on sentimental grounds. The board of health, however, held that the practice was a menace to public health, the odor being such as to sicken persons in the vicinity. The tombs were exceedingly dilapidated, giving free vent to gases, and in some instances men cutting grass had fallen into them. The soil of both the Granary and King's Chapel was fairly saturated with buried remains, the two cemeteries containing about 3,000 bodies. "Dives," declared the board, "is no sweeter in decomposition than Lazarus." The result was an order forbidding further interments.

The main interest of a burial-ground is in those who tenant it. Here, in the heart of the populous, living city, swept round by the central pulse and tingle of Boston life, yet utterly aloof, sleep the dead of a different and departed Boston. Here are they who builded the rude village, who managed the growing town. Save for a few modern memorials erected in patriotic commemoration, the stones are gray and old and worn. Neatly piled in a corner are fragments of slabs, broken, defaced, detached from their unknown places, so illegible that none can tell in memory of whom they were carved. Though kept with all care and neatness, the cemetery is slowly mouldering away.

The inhabitants of the town of Boston were at an early day keenly alive to business and thrift. The records of the town evidence this in many ways and every possible income was exacted from the old burial-grounds. Reference has already been made to sales of herbage and the letting for pastures. Grave-diggers were appointed to office by the selectmen and their charges fixed and regulated from time to time by the town.

April 28, 1701, it was "Ordered that the digging of Graves in the two South burrying places shall be Three Shillings for each grave for a grown persons Corps from the first day of Aprill to the first day of October, and four Shillings, from the first day of October, to the first day of Aprill yearly, and James Williams in behalfe of his mother undertakes to take care of digging the graves in the two South burriall places for this year at that rate."

Later in the same year the selectmen being "Enformed by the grave digers that they often faile of receiving their pay of Severall of the poorer Sort of persons and that much time is spent in waiting on burrialls besides the noysomness and other difficultyes attending their work at Some Seasons of the year more than other, The price for digging graves was ordered to be four shillings throught the year for a man or woman."

Thirty years later (May 17, 1732) finds a new schedule of rates adopted.

For white man or woman	10 shillings
For persons 6 to 12 years of age	7 shillings
For children caryed by hand	5 shillings
For negro man or woman	7 shillings & 6 pence
Ditto from six to twelve years of age	6 shillings
For children.	four shillings
For opening the new or wall Toombes	14 shillings
For opening the Old Toombes or those that stand in the midst of the Burying Places	sixteen shillings

These charges for some reason were reduced Sept. 13, 1745, when another change was voted. At this time the "Prices to be paid in old tenor bills."

For digging a grave white man or woman	nine shillings
For children by hand	four shillings
For a negro man or woman at ye South	seven shillings
For ditto at the North Burial Ground.	eight shillings
For ditto to 12 years of age at both places	five shillings
For opening a wall tomb	twelve shillings
For opening an old tomb	fourteen shillings

Still later, Dec. 28, 1748, Voted: "That the Grave Diggers in the South Burying places be Allowed for Digging a Grave for a man or woman Sixteen Shillings old tenor, for children eight shillings."

It is likely that the first graves dug in the Granary were unmarked with stones, and burials therein were not numerous. Though the ground was laid out in 1660, no stone has been found of an earlier date than 1667. The oldest stone discovered is one found west of the Franklin monument, and bearing the following inscription:

HERE LIES YE BODY OF
JOHN WAKEFIELD.
AGED 52 YEARS
DEC'D JUNE YE 18
1667.

The oldest horizontal slab, as well as the first metrical epitaph, records the death of Mrs. Hannah Allen, wife of Rev. James Allen, pastor of the First Church. She died on February 26, 1667, aged twenty-one. The verse on her tomb reads:

STAY ! THOU THIS TOMBE THAT PASSETH BY AND THINK HOW SOON THAT THOU MAYST DIE :
 IF SEX, OR AGE, OR VIRTUES BRIGHT
 WOULD HAVE PROLONGED TO THESE IT MIGHT,
 THOUGH VIRTUE MADE NOT DEATH TO STAY,
 YET TURN'D IT WAS TO BE THEIR WAY,
 AND IF WITH THEM THOU WOULDST BE BLEST,
 PREPARE TO DYE BEFORE THOU REST.

Perhaps no burial-ground in New England contains names more distinguished. Though the Granary is not so actively connected with local history as is Copp's Hill, yet a greater number of famous Bostonians are here buried. Here lie governors of the province and state, judges, ministers, and town leaders, together with some of the leading figures of the Revolution.

The conspicuous monument in the centre of the yard, erected over the parents of Franklin, draws perhaps most attention from the casual visitor. Nearby sleep others of the Franklin family. The original stone, erected by Franklin himself, had become so dilapidated that in 1827 it was replaced by the present stone, the gift of "a number of citizens."

Josiah Franklin, the father, was born in Ecton in Northamptonshire, in 1598, and during the non-conformist persecution came over to New England in 1685. Abiah, whose name shares the inscription, was his second wife. In his memoir, their youngest son, Benjamin, writes, "I never knew either my father or mother to have sickness but that of which they died, he at eighty-nine, and she at eighty-five years of age. They lie buried together at Boston, where I, some years since, placed a marble over their grave with this inscription :—

A. F. BORN 1667, DIED 1752, AE. 85.

This stone was replaced on June 15, 1827, by the present monument, which is an obelisk of Quincy granite twenty-one feet high. On the front side in bronze letters is affixed the name

FRANKLIN TOMB, GRANARY BURIAL-GROUND.

“Franklin.” On a bronze table beneath, sunk into the stone, is carved Franklin’s epitaph, with the following inscription below it:

THE ORIGINAL INSCRIPTION HAVING BEEN NEARLY OBLITERATED
A NUMBER OF CITIZENS
ERECTED THIS MONUMENT, AS A MARK OF RESPECT FOR THE ILLUSTRIOUS AUTHOR, MDCCCXXVII.

Under the corner-stone were placed an inscribed silver plate, a Franklin medal, and several other medals. The inscription on the plate declares that “This monument was erected over the remains of the Parents of Benjamin Franklin, by the citizens of Boston, from respect to the private character and public services of this illustrious patriot and philosopher, and for the many tokens of his affectionate attachment to this native town.”

Perhaps the most famous tenant of the Granary is Samuel Adams. On the boulder placed over his grave by the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the Revolution, the inscription runs:

HERE LIES BURIED
SAMUEL ADAMS
SIGNER OF THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE
GOVERNOR OF THIS COMMONWEALTH
A LEADER OF MEN AND AN ARDENT PATRIOT
BORN 1722	DIED 1803
MASSACHUSETTS	SONS OF THE
SOCIETY	REVOLUTION.

There is little need of recounting the public fame of “Sam Adams.” As to his personal career, he was born in Boston, September 15, 1722, being the son of Captain Samuel Adams, a brewer. He was sent to Harvard to become a minister, but the charm of politics lured him from the pulpit to the forum. The subject of his oration at graduation was: “Whether it be lawful to Resist the Supreme Magistrate, if the Commonwealth cannot otherwise be preserved?” Adams decided that it is.

He was vainly launched on a mercantile career. After an indifferent apprenticeship in a counting house, his father lent him £1,000 with which to begin business. Of this sum, he lent one half to a friend in distress, and never exacted payment. The rest was soon frittered away.

Adams then devoted heart and soul to his true vocation — politics. With voice and pen, he led the way to revolution. In a few brief years, he induced his countrymen to boycott British goods till the repeal of the Stamp Act; inspired the Boston Tea Party; originated the Provincial Congress; and created the public opinion which upheld all these measures.

After serving in Congress through the war, he returned to find his house practically destroyed by the British. The premature death of his son, Dr. Adams, however, left him a competence for old age. He became an ardent Republican, despite the political obloquy thus incurred. He was chosen governor by a narrow margin, and in 1796 received a scattering vote for President. He died in October, 1803, aged eighty-two. Party feeling ran so deep at the time that with difficulty were got for him the funeral honors due to one of exalted rank.

The character of this tribune of the people is illuminated by his refusal to accept from the British government a pension of £2,000 to keep quiet, and by this opinion passed upon him by a Tory governor;—"Such is the obstinacy and the inflexible disposition of the man, that he never would be conciliated by any office whatever."

Over the grave of the patriot orator, James Otis, is another bowlder, dedicated by the Massachusetts Society Sons of the Revolution. On the plate affixed to the stone is inscribed the following epitaph:

HERE LIES BURIED
JAMES OTIS
ORATOR AND PATRIOT OF THE REVOLUTION
FAMOUS FOR HIS ARGUMENT
AGAINST WRITS OF ASSISTANCE
BORN 1725 DIED 1783
1898.

Otis was born in Barnstable on February 5, 1725. After graduating from Harvard in 1743, he studied law and was admitted to the bar in Plymouth in 1748, removing to Boston in 1750.

His brilliant and stormy public career began with his famous opposition to the Writs of Assistance, allowing the king's officers to break open any citizen's store or dwelling in their search for goods on which duty had not been paid and compelling sheriffs and others to aid in the hateful work. Otis resigned rather than uphold the writs. In fact, he was chosen to contest their legality before a court held amid great excitement in the old town hall. Gridley, the crown advocate, argued that parliamentary supremacy left no ground for complaint. The answering speech of Otis created a profound impression. "Otis was a flame of fire," wrote John Adams, "with a promptitude of classical allusions, a rapid summary of historical events and dates, a profusion of legal authorities, a prophetic glance of his eyes into futurity and a rapid torrent of impetuous eloquence, he hurried away all before him American independence was then and there born."

The judges evaded a decision; and the writs, though secretly granted at the next term, were never executed.

In the following year, Otis was elected to the Legislature, where he became the leader of the popular party and earned the title of "the greatest incendiary of New England." He offered on June 6, 1765, a motion recommending a provincial congress. The circular letter sent out in consequence resulted in the holding at New York in October of the Stamp Act Congress, to which Otis was a delegate.

In 1768, after the passage of Townshend's plan of taxation, the House sent out another circular letter advising united action to obtain redress. Governor Bernard demanded that the letter be rescinded. Otis thereupon made a speech which the partisans of the government termed "the most violent, insolent, abusive and treasonable declaration that has perhaps ever been delivered." By a vote of ninety-two to seventeen, the House refused to rescind.

In the summer of 1769 Otis inserted a notice in the Boston "Gazette," denouncing the customs commissioners for having charged him with treason. The next evening in a coffee-house, he met Robinson, one of the commissioners. An affray ensued in which Otis was severely injured by a blow on the head from a cudgel. He obtained £2,000 damages from Robinson, but restored the amount on receiving an apology.

The blow, however, had ruined his career. Henceforth he was but a wreck of the orator and scholar. In 1770 he retired to Andover, for his health. The next year, in the Legislature, he made practically his last public appearance. Save at intervals, during the rest of his life, his mind was deranged. During his insanity, he destroyed all his papers. On May 23, 1783; while standing at the door or the house in which he lodged at Andover, he was killed by lightning, the death he is said to have desired.

The stones placed over the graves of Adams and Otis are handsome bowlders of Roxbury puddingstone, and easily constitute the most artistic memorials in the Granary. The following account regarding them is taken from a historical sketch of the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the Revolution, by Mr. Walter Gilman Page:

"On the one hundred and twenty-third anniversary of the battle of Lexington, the Sons of the Revolution gathered about the tomb of Samuel Adams in the Old Granary Burial-ground. For ninety-five years the spot where the mortal remains of Samuel Adams were laid away had been unmarked, and almost unknown, at least to a large proportion of the citizens of Boston.

"On March 26, 1898, the tomb was opened for purposes of identification, though it was well known that Samuel Adams was buried in the Checkley Tomb, the property of his wife. It was necessary to remove the earth to about the depth of three feet before the two stone slabs which lay across the short flight of steps leading down into the mouth of the tomb could be reached. The tomb was found to be in excellent condition, perfectly intact, constructed solidly of brick throughout, the roof being slightly curved. Every indication furnished satisfactory evidence, and left no doubt, if any existed, that the great organizer of the Revolution was laid to rest in the Checkley tomb:

"Samuel Adams Wells, the grandson of Samuel Adams, made the following memorandum, which appears in the appendix of a volume of poems by John Witt Randall, great-grandson of Adams:

“ ‘ Samuel Adams was buried in the Checkley Tomb, which adjoins the westerly sidewalk of Tremont street in Boston. His bones were gathered into a box by his grandson, and deposited in a corner of the vault.

‘ Teste, S. A. Wells.’

“ The rugged granite bowlder with its tablet of bronze is in perfect keeping with the ancient character of the Old Burial-ground, in which it has found a permanent abiding-place. No other form of memorial would have been so appropriate; and the selection was a happy one, typifying, as it so well does, the bold and firm nature of the man whose illustrious memory it guards. Placed at the head of the flight of steps, leading down to the entrance of the tomb, it was unveiled with simple but impressive speech, and presented to the City that Samuel Adams loved so well.

“ In the same line of tombs, but on the opposite side of the entrance to the Old Granary, and equally distant from it, interred in the Longley tomb, repose the remains of the fiery orator and ardent patriot, James Otis. The proofs of this fact are so interesting in themselves that perhaps no apology is needed for recording them here in this connection at some length.

“ That the location of the burial-place of James Otis, one of the great leaders in the Revolution, should have been forgotten for over half a century, seems almost incredible; but many circumstances have tended to veil it from public knowledge. For many years, queries have appeared in the daily press and historical publications, asking for information on the subject. Conjectures were made that he was buried in West Barnstable, where he was born; while many others have believed that he was buried at Andover, Mass., where he was killed by lightning. And this supposition was strengthened by the fact of his request, shortly before his death, to be buried on a knoll directly in the rear of Mr. Osgood's house at Andover. Local historians have looked in vain for any clew that would lead to a solution of the mystery.

“ But by collecting probate records, family history gathered from various sources, and the traditions of one family connected with the Cunningham family, of the generation contemporary with James Otis, the tomb in which were interred the remains of the Hon. James Otis, the distinguished patriot of the Revolution, has finally been discovered, “ Thomas Bridgman, who wrote a book of epitaphs of the Granary Burying-ground, does not mention the name of Otis. The bronze tablets on the iron gates do not record the fact that James Otis is buried within the grounds. But our records are conclusive that James Otis was buried in that burying-ground after his remains were brought from Andover to his dwelling in Boston, and the funeral cortege that marched from the house to the ground was one of the largest ever beheld in Boston.

“ In the records of St. John's lodge of A. F. & A. M. of Boston is recorded the fact that James Otis was made a Mason in the year 1752, and was a member of that lodge. This lodge escorted his remains to the tomb.

“ The newspapers published at the time of Mr. Otis' death and funeral furnished but meagre accounts. The Boston Gazette or Country Journal, under date of Boston, May 26, 1783, says : —

“ ‘ We hear from Andover that last Friday Evening the House of Mr. Isaac Osgood was set on fire and much shattered by Lightning, by which the Hon. James Otis, Esq., of this Town, leaning upon his Cane at the front Door, was instantly killed. Several Persons were in the House at the Time, some of whom were violently affected by the Shock, but, immediately recovering, ran to Mr. Otis' support; but he had expired without a groan. The Friends and Acquaintances of the Deceased are informed his Funeral is to be To-Morrow from his House near the County Court House. Freemasons are to preceed the Corps.’

“ The Massachusetts Spy or Worcester Gazette, under date Boston, May 29, 1783, contains almost exactly the same account as above, with the following addition : ‘ His remains were honourably interred last Tuesday afternoon, preceded by the honourable fraternity of free and accepted masons, and followed by a long train of respectable friends.'

"Mr. Otis' family were notified as soon as possible of the sudden death of Mr. Otis; and Samuel Allyne Otis, the youngest brother of Mr. Otis, proceeded at once to Andover, and brought his remains to Boston.

"Colonel Joseph May, a prominent citizen of Boston, for many years a member of King's Chapel, who died in Boston in 1841, and to whose memory a marble tablet was placed on the wall of King's Chapel, was well versed in the history of Boston. He came to breakfast after his usual morning walk, and said to the family: 'I have seen something wonderfully interesting this morning. As I passed the Old Granary Burying-ground, I saw that the tomb was open in which I knew were the remains of James Otis, and with the help of the sexton I opened the lid of Otis' coffin, and, behold! the coffin was full of the fibrous roots of the elm, especially thick and matted about the skull; and, going out, I looked at the noble elm, and there, in transfigured glory, I saw all that was material of James Otis.'"

The elm referred to was undoubtedly one of the gigantic Pad-dock elms that formerly stood on the Tremont Street sidewalk in front of the burying-ground.

The remains of James Otis were interred in the Nathaniel Cunningham, Sr., tomb, numbered forty on the Tremont Street front of the Granary Burying-ground, between the Park Street Church front and the gate of the Burying-ground. This tomb was built by Nathaniel Cunningham, Sr., a wealthy merchant of Boston, in 1726 (Boston records). Nathaniel Cunningham, Sr., his mother Ruth Cunningham, his son Nathaniel Cunningham, Jr., the Hon. James Otis, Ruth (Cunningham) Otis, wife of James Otis and daughter of Nathaniel Cunningham, Sr., and a number of others of this family, are buried in this tomb. The slate slab on the tomb bears the inscription only of George Longley, 1809. The absence of the names Cunningham and Otis from the tomb slab, together with the early death of Mr. Otis' family, caused the identification of this tomb with the name of Otis to be obscured.

This tomb, after the death of Nathaniel Cunningham, Sr., was held by Ruth, Sarah, and Nathaniel Cunningham, Jr.; Nathaniel Jr., dying soon after his father, left the two daughters, his sisters, Ruth and Sarah, heirs of the tomb. Ruth married James Otis; and, as her husband never owned a tomb, his widow caused his remains to be placed in this tomb, of which she was part owner, and which contained the remains of her ancestors.

Besides the heirship to the Cunningham tomb by the James Otis family, traditions have been handed down by well-known families that James Otis' remains were buried in the Cunningham tomb.

On July 15, 1898, the anniversary of the storming of Stony Point by Anthony Wayne, a boulder and tablet similar to the memorial already dedicated to the memory of Samuel Adams was unveiled in the presence of a large gathering, and presented by the Sons of the Revolution to Mayor Quincy, who accepted the gift in behalf of the city. These two simple monuments shall be a witness to generations yet unborn that the descendants of the men who stood behind Adams and Otis, perhaps tardily, yet worthily, honor their memories as true and tried patriots.

The inscriptions for the Adams and Otis tablets were written by Dr. Samuel A. Green, of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

In the southwestern corner of the ground a rough stone with this simple inscription,

Nº 16
TOMB OF HANCOCK

was all that marked the resting-place of John Hancock, the first governor of this Commonwealth. In 1895 the Commonwealth erected a magnificent steel monument, with the following inscription :

OBSTA PRINCIPIIS
· THIS · MEMORIAL · ERECTED ·
· A · D · MDCCCXCV · BY · THE · COM-MONWEALTH · OF · MASSACHU-SETTS · TO · MARK · THE · GRAVE · OF · JOHN · HANCOCK ·

Hancock was born in Quincy on January 12, 1737. After graduating from Harvard in 1754, he entered the clearing house of his wealthy uncle as a clerk. At 27 he came into possession of his uncle's estate, one of the largest in the province.

His first public office was that of selectman, which he held for several years. At 29 he entered the Legislature. His strong convictions, coupled with his social and public prominence, naturally made him a leader in the popular ante-Revolution movement. He was one of the committee which secured the removal of the British troops after the Boston Massacre. On an anniversary of the same occasion he delivered a bold and glowing address which deeply offended the government. It had tried to win him over by intimidation and flattery, but now sought to repress him with a strong hand. Gage's expedition to Concord was partly with the purpose of seizing Hancock and Adams; the quarry, however, escaped.

In October, 1774, the Massachusetts Provincial Congress chose Hancock its president. The next year he became president of the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, serving till October, 1777, when he resigned and retired to Quincy. His bold signature to the Declaration, especially since at first the only one appended, brought him into conspicuous notice, and has since kept him there.

Hancock was commissioned a major-general of the Massachusetts Militia and in August, 1778, commanded the Massachusetts troops in the ineffective Rhode Island expedition.

PAUL REVERE TOMB, GRANARY BURIAL-GROUND.

He presided over the State Constitutional Convention in 1780 and was chosen the first governor after its adoption. He was elected five successive years, and again, after an interval of two years, filled the chair until his death. In the presidential election of 1789 he received four electoral votes.

As Hancock left no children, he bequeathed most of his fortune to benevolent purposes, generously remembering Harvard. The college conferred upon him the degree of LL.D. in 1792. He died on October 8, 1793.

A headstone of notable patriotic significance, as that of a famous signer of the Declaration of Independence, is one bearing the simple inscription :

NO. 88.
THE TOMB OF R. T. PAINE,
1810.

Paine was born in Boston on March 11, 1731, and died there on May 11, 1814. On graduating from Harvard in 1749, he studied theology and in 1755 acted as army chaplain on the northern frontier. After a business voyage to Europe, he studied law, meanwhile supporting himself by teaching school. He began practice in Taunton and was chosen a delegate to the convention held in Boston after the dissolution of the General Court by Governor Bernard for its refusal to rescind its circular letter.

In 1770 he added largely to his reputation by conducting, in the absence of the attorney-general, the case against Captain Preston and the troopers engaged in the Boston Massacre.

He represented Taunton in the House of 1773 and 1774, and in 1774 and 1775 was a delegate to the Continental Congress. He was again in Congress in 1776, 1777 and 1778, meanwhile acting in 1777 as Speaker of the Massachusetts House and as attorney-general. In 1779 he was a member of the Executive Council and was one of the committee to frame the State constitution.

He served as the first attorney-general of the State until 1790, when he became a justice of the Supreme Court. Deafness and ill-health, however, compelled him to resign in 1804. In the same year he was chosen State councillor, but shortly retired to private life.

He was a founder of the American Academy established in 1780. As attorney-general his strictness is said to have gained him a reputation for undue severity.

Another noteworthy patriot interred in the Granary is the ingenious mechanic and ardent patriot, the messenger of the midnight ride immortalized by Longfellow — Paul Revere. The inscription on his headstone is as follows :

PAUL REVERE
BORN
IN BOSTON,
JANUARY, 1734,
DIED
MAY 1818.

Revere was born in Boston on January 1, 1735, and died in May, 1818. He was Huguenot descent, the family name having been Rivoire. He was brought up to his father's trade of goldsmith. Before setting up in business, he served as a lieutenant of artillery in the colonial army.

He speedily learned the art of copper-plate engraving, and was one of the four engravers in America at the time of the Revolution. Many of his prints possess much historical significance and were very popular, such as that of "The Seventeen Re-scinders," at the time of Governor Bernard's effort to suppress the circular letter; "The Boston Massacre," etc. In 1775, when the Provincial Congress authorized the issue of paper money, it was Revere who engraved the plates, made the press, and printed the bills. He was sent to Philadelphia to visit the powder mill there and to learn the method of its construction. He set up a mill in Boston on his return.

Revere's active deeds as a patriot began with his participation in the Tea Party. He was forthwith sent to New York and Philadelphia to spread the news of what had been done. He was sent on a similar errand when the decree arrived closing the port of Boston.

Then followed the famous ride to Lexington, to warn Hancock, Adams, and the rest of the coming of Gage to Concord. The story hardly needs retelling. Later Revere became a lieutenant-colonel in the defence of Massachusetts. After the Revolution, his career had still a military tinge, being devoted to the casting of cannon as well as church bells. Revere also attained considerable prominence as a Mason.

Of equal interest with the tombs of these patriot leaders is the unmarked grave where sleep the humbler victims of the Boston Massacre. Their remains lie about twenty feet in from the iron fence and sixty feet south of the Tremont Building. Over the spot formerly grew a rich and beautiful larch-tree.

In some lines on the Massacre in "Fleet's Post," published March 12, 1770, a local versifier sang:

"Dear to your country shall your fame extend,
While to the world the lettered stone shall tell
How Caldwell, Attucks, Gray and Maverick fell."

Sad to say, no stone fulfils this mission; if ever there was one, it fell a victim to British spite or to the mistaken zeal of some attendant afflicted with an iconoclastic passion for repairs.

The five here buried are: Crispus Attucks, Samuel Gray, James Caldwell, Samuel Maverick and Patrick Carr. The story of the historic fracas between the rope-makers and Preston's soldiers is too well known to need recounting. The first four were buried on March 8. A huge procession, four abreast, and bearing emblematic banners, followed the hearses to the Granary, while in the rear came practically all the carriages in Boston. During the funeral the bells were tolled in the town and the suburbs. On March 14, Patrick Carr, who had meanwhile died, was buried in the same grave.

When the City tomb was being dug at the time the iron fence was erected in June, 1840, the bones of the five were discovered, as attested by a bullet-hole through one of the skulls, that of Samuel Gray. One of the sextons of King's Chapel, Martin Smith by name, replaced the bones in the earth close by the larch-tree.

The Granary also has the honor of having been the temporary resting-place of the remains of Gen. Joseph Warren. In the spring of 1776, his corpse was deposited in the Minot tomb, on the southwestern side of the yard. In 1824, Dr. J. C. Warren opened the tomb and identified the patriot's relics by the bullet wound in the skull and the decay of one of the teeth. The remains were encased in a mahogany box and deposited in a tomb under St. Paul's Church. In August, 1855, they were deposited in a stone urn and transferred to Forest Hills where they still remain.

Besides the Revolutionary heroes it contains, the Granary holds the remains of several of the old-time governors. The first of these was Governor Richard Bellingham, who, as shown by the following inscription, shares his tomb with a later governor :

The family tomb of
JAMES SULLIVAN, ESQ.
late Governor and Commander in chief of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, who departed this life
on the 10th Day of Dec'r A. D. 1808
Aged 64 Years.
His Remains are Here Deposited.

During a life of remarkable industry, activity and usefulness, amidst Public and private contemporaneous avocations, uncommonly various,
he was distinguished for zeal, intelligence and fidelity.
Public-spirited, benevolent and social,
he was eminently beloved as a man, eminently esteemed as a citizen, and eminently respected as a magistrate.

LATE GOVERNOR IN THE COLONY OF MASSACHUSETTS,
WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE IN THE 7TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1672,
THE EIGHTY-FIRST YEARE OF HIS AGE.

VIRTUE'S FAST FRIEND WITHIN THIS TOMB DOTH LYE, A FOE TO BRIBES, BUT RICH IN CHARITY.

The Bellingham Family being extinct
The Selectmen of Boston in the Year 1782 Assigned this Tomb to
JAMES SULLIVAN, ESQ.
The remains of Governor Bellingham
Are Here Preserved,
And the above inscription is restored
From the ancient Monument.

The second slab is raised on six stone pillars above the first, in practically the shape of a table. Each is of marble.

Bellingham was first elected in 1641 by a narrow majority; but the General Court was not satisfied as to the validity of the election. He was again chosen in 1654, and on the death of Endicott in May, 1665, was once more elected, serving continuously until his death. In all he served ten years as governor and thirteen as deputy governor, besides being chosen major-general in 1664.

His second wife, married in 1641, was about to be contracted to a friend of Bellingham's, "when on a sudden the Governor treated with her and obtained her for himself." He performed the ceremony himself and to the strictures of public opinion gave as his excuse the very natural one of "the strength of his affection."

Hubbard describes him as "a very ancient gentleman having spun a very long thread of above eighty years; he was a great justiciary, a notable hater of tribes, firm and fixed in any resolution he entertained, of larger comprehension than expression, like a vessel whose vent holdeth no good proportion with its capacity to contain disadvantage to a public person."

At the time of his death, Governor Bellingham was the sole surviving patentee named in the colonial charter.

Governor Sullivan's was truly "a life of remarkable industry and usefulness," and his avocations "uncommonly various." He was about equally a lawyer, author, business man, and politician, and very busy at each. He was born of Irish descent at Berwick, Maine, April 22, 1744. He stood high among the legal lights that came forth in New England toward the end of the century. During his seventeen years' service as attorney-general, he conducted many of the admiralty, probate, superior and supreme courts; in addition, he had a heavy private practice. As an author, he showed marked ability in the writing of law works, political tracts, and constant contributions to the political controversies of the press. In public life, besides serving on various commissions, he acted as representative, member of the council, delegate to Congress, and, after several close campaigns, was in 1807 and 1808 twice successful as Republican candidate for governor, dying before the end of his second term. He was one of the incorporators of the Middlesex Canal and largely instrumental in its final building. He helped found the Massachusetts Historical Society and was its first president. He was exceedingly active, high spirited, eloquent, and hospitable, and was popular even with his Federalist opponents in times when party feeling ran high.

A beautifully chiselled coat-of-arms, with the inscription "JAMES BOWDOIN, ESQ." carved boldly above it on a tablet of slate, marks the tomb of another famous governor, one of the chief magistrates of the State. The slab has been enclosed during the spring of the present year (1901) in a durable casing of bronze, which emphasizes its striking and well-preserved appearance. It stands in the southwest corner of the yard.

Bowdoin was born August 7, 1726, and died November 6, 1790. Of him his eulogist, Judge Lowell, said: "It may be said that our country has produced many men of as much genius, many men of as much learning and knowledge, many of as much zeal for the liberties of their country and many of as great piety and virtue; but is it not rare indeed, to find those in whom they have all combined and been adorned with his other accomplishments?"

Bowdoin was graduated from Harvard in 1745 and at twenty-four began a life long friendship with Franklin. He was later elected a fellow of the Royal Society and was the first president of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

He served three years in the Provincial Legislature and sixteen in the Council, wherein he was styled by Wedderburn, "the leader and manager as Mr. Adams was in the House." Illness prevented his going as one of the five Massachusetts delegates to the first Continental Congress. He presided over the constitutional convention in 1780, and in 1785 was elected governor. During his second term, he quelled the difficulties of Shay's Rebellion with great moderation. His last public capacity was that of a member in the state convention which in 1788 ratified the Constitution.

Another worthy and notable tenant of the Granary is Governor William Dummer, who was prominent in public life a half century before Bowdoin. Dummer, though born in Massachusetts, in 1679, was, when appointed lieutenant-governor, holding a commissioner's office in Plymouth, England. He was left governor on the departure of Shute in 1723 and held that post till Burnet's arrival in 1728. He enjoyed a second shorter tenure between Burnet's death and the term of his successor, William Tailer. His administration was honest and upright and distinguished by successful campaigns against the Indians. After 1730, Dummer lived in retirement till his death on October 10, 1761, at the age of eighty-two. He was a man of pure character and of marked piety and charity.

Gov. Christopher Gore also lies buried in the Granary. He was born in Boston in 1758 and graduated from Harvard in 1776. After some years' service as United State attorney, he was appointed with William Pinckney a commissioner under Jay's treaty to settle our spoliation claims against England.

After his return, he succeeded Governor Sullivan in 1809, but in the following year was replaced by Governor Gerry. From 1814 he served three years as United States Senator, then retiring from public life.

On the conspicuous stone over the grave of another governor, Increase Sumner, is carved the following laudatory epitaph:

Here reposes
the remains of

INCREASE SUMNER,

Born at Roxbury
Nov. 27, 1746,
Died at same place
June 7, 1799.

He was for some time a practitioner at the Bar ;
And for fifteen years an Associate Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court ;
Was thrice elected

GOVERNOR OF MASSACHUSETTS

in which office he died
As a Lawyer, he was faithful and able ;
As a Judge patient, impartial and decisive
As a Chief Magistrate accessible, frank and independent.

In the vigour of intellectual attainments and in the midst of usefulness he was called by Divine Providence to rest with his fathers,
he went down to the chambers of death, in the full belief, that the grave is the pathway to future existence.
As in life he secured the suffrages of the free,
And was blessed with the approbation of the wise,
So in death he was honoured by the tears of the patriotic
And is held in sweet remembrance by a discerning and affectionate people.

In private life,
He was affectionate and mild ;
In public life,
He was dignified and firm,
Party feuds were allayed
by the correctness of his conduct,
Calumny was silenced
by the weight of his virtues,
And rancour softened
by the amenity of his manners.

This compendious epitaph leaves little to be said. Sumner was graduated from Harvard with distinction in 1767, and, beginning with 1776, served three terms in the General Court, as well as two in the Senate from 1780. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1779-80, as also later of the convention which accepted the federal constitution. In August, 1782, he was appointed an associate justice of the Supreme Judicial Court, and in January, 1785, was added to the committee to revise the State laws. In 1796, though averse to being a candidate, he was elected governor, and was thrice reëlected by great majorities. He did not live to enter on his last term.

As the inscription on his tomb would indicate, no governor was more trusted and beloved. His remains were interred with military honors at the public expense, the funeral procession extending from Roxbury to the State House.

Perhaps none of the graves in the Granary contain a more interesting and notable personage than does the populous Sewall tomb, which already had at the opening of the Revolution at least forty occupants, chief among them the famous chronicler of provincial days, Judge Samuel Sewall. The tomb was built by Sewall's father-in-law, John Hull, the master of the mint, who lies buried therein, and who is noted for having bestowed as a dowry on his daughter, Hannah, at her marriage to Sewall, her weight in bright silver Pine Tree shillings from his mint.

Judge Sewall was born on March 28, 1652, at Bishop Stoke, Hampshire County, England, and was brought over to Boston in the second and final migration of his parents hither in 1661. He was graduated from Harvard in 1671, serving some time as a tutor. By his marriage in February, 1675-6, he acquired a fortune for those days. He was treasurer of the colony in 1676, and subsequently one of the Board of Assistants, besides serving thirty-three years in the Council. He was long a probate judge for Suffolk County. He served on the bench of the Supreme Court over forty years, ten years of his tenure being in the capacity of Chief Justice. The next notable incident of his judicial career was the famous witch trials, his public remorse on account of which, together with his remarkable confession of penitence in the records, strikingly illuminates the character of the man. New England never had a judge more wise, just, pious, and humane. The fame of his charming and picturesque diary, that treasure of the antiquarians, is too universal to justify recounting.

Another of the public officials who sleep in the Granary is Lieutenant-Governor Cushing. On the marble obelisk erected over his tomb in 1846 by a grandson is carved the following inscription :

THOMAS CUSHING,
Lieut. Gov. of Mass.
died 19th Jan. 1788 ;
aged 63 years
He took an active part in the Revolutionary conflict and was several years
Speaker of
The House of Representatives of Mass.
until he became a member of the Continental Congress, in the year 1774 and 5.

Cushing was born in Boston in 1725 and graduated from Harvard in 1744. His life was largely spent in public office, the earlier part in the Legislature. On returning from service in the Continental Congress, he was elected to the Council, and also was appointed judge of the Court of Common Pleas and of Probate in Suffolk County. On the adoption of the State constitution, he was chosen lieutenant-governor, retaining that office till his death. He was a man of ability and learning, as well as of a kindly and amiable disposition.

As is natural, the Granary is studded with names of Boston divines. Among the many ministers buried here, one might single out Rev. Thomas Prince, the learned historical scholar; Rev. Joseph Eckley, the distinguished pastor of the Old South congregation, at the time it retook the Old South Meeting-House after its British occupation; Rev. Jeremy Belknap, the generous benefactor of the Massachusetts General Hospital; Doctors Lathrop, Baldwin, the evangelist, and Stillman.

An interesting ecclesiastic buried in the Granary is Rev. Pierre Daillé, the pastor of the Huguenots who found refuge in Boston in 1687, after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. He organized his little congregation in the town school-house on School street, and it was not till 1716, a year after his death, that they succeeded in building a small brick church on the same street. Though most of the Huguenots migrated from Boston in a few years succeeding, many French names can be deciphered on the stones in the Granary. The headstone over Daillé's grave was found in 1860 in the cellar of an old estate on Pleasant street. The worthy French parson left instructions "that there be no wine at my funeral, and none of my wife's relations have any mourning clothes furnished them except gloves."

The founder of the "Cradle of Liberty," Peter Faneuil, is a noteworthy tenant of the Granary. It was in rather interesting fashion that he came to make his historic gift out of the fortune newly inherited from his uncle.

Amid great dissension, three market houses, one of them in Dock square, had been built to supplement the old system of itinerant peddling. One night in 1737, the advocates of the old Régimé, "disguised like clergymen," destroyed the central market house mentioned. At a town-meeting in July, 1740, Faneuil offered to rebuild and maintain the demolished market house.

The key of the finished structure was delivered to the selectmen on Sept. 10, 1742. During the construction, it was suggested to Faneuil that a town hall might readily be built over the market. He accepted the suggestion, although he is said to have grumbled a little when informed of the additional cost.

At a meeting held forthwith in the new hall, it was voted that, whereas Peter Faneuil "has, at a very great expense, erected a noble structure, far exceeding his first proposal, inasmuch as it contains not only a large and sufficient accommodation for a market place, but a spacious and most beautiful town hall over it, and several other convenient rooms which may prove very beneficial to the town for offices or otherwise; as the said building being now finished, he has delivered possession thereof to the selectmen for the use of the town; it is therefore voted that the town do, with the utmost gratitude, receive and accept this most generous and noble benefaction." It was also voted that the hall be called Faneuil Hall forever.

This building of Faneuil's, of which only the walls were left standing after the fire of January 13, 1761, was but half the width of the present structure, and but two stories high. It could contain but one thousand persons.

John Phillips, the first mayor of Boston, also sleeps in the Granary. He was born in Boston, Nov. 26, 1770, and graduated from Harvard in 1788. His public career before election to the new office of mayor comprised many years' service as town advocate and public prosecutor, beside twenty years spent in the Senate, ten of them as its president.

He was chosen mayor as a compromise candidate. Josiah Quincy agreed to run for the office, not knowing that Harrison Gray Otis, then the leading local figure in the party, was also a candidate. The Democrats seized the opportunity and after nominating Thomas L. Winthrop on the night before election, threw enough votes to prevent any candidate getting a majority. Otis and Quincy then withdrew, and Phillips, an acceptable third choice, was readily elected. He proved an upright official, of tact and good judgment, as well as discreet and pliant enough to smoothen the transition to the new form of local government. Apart from the organization of departments, little of positive importance was done during his administration.

On the refusal of Phillips, because of ill-health, to accept a second term, Josiah Quincy said of his predecessor: "It is impossible for me to refrain from expressing the sense I entertain of the services of that high and honorable individual who has filled the chair of this city."

Probably the most remarkable epitaph in the Granary is the following:

ELISHA BROWN

(of) BOSTON

Who in Oct^r J769, during J7 days inspired with a generous Zeal for the LAWS, bravely & successfully opposed a whole British Regt.

in their violent attempt to FORCE him from his

(legal Habitation)

Happy Citizen when Call'd singley to be a Barrier to the Liberties

(of a Continent)

The incident narrated in the inscription occurred in the south end of the town. Brown was ordered to surrender his roomy mansion for use as a barracks. On his refusal, he was surrounded and besieged by the troops. With all the doors and windows barred, he held out "bravely and successfully" for the seventeen days mentioned, subsisting on the household stores and on what provisions his friends could smuggle in from without.

At length, the British gave up the unpleasant task in disgust. Brown died in August, 1785, at the age of sixty-five.

The following inscription tells a long story of heroism, and needs no comment :

BENJAMIN WOODBRIDGE,

SON OF THE HONORABLE

DUDLEY WOODBRIDGE, ESQ'R,

WHO DEC'D JULY y^e 3d

1728, IN y^e 20th

YEAR OF HIS AGE.

Young Woodbridge fell mortally wounded in the first duel fought in Boston. He was the son of a Barbadoes merchant and on completing his education had been admitted to partnership with Jonathan Sewall, a leading merchant. His opponent was Henry Phillips, twenty-four, freshly graduated from Harvard, and successor with his brother, Gillam, to the bookselling business of their father, Samuel Phillips. The pair, who had quarrelled over cards, fought with small swords in the evening, on a knoll of the Common, near where stood an ancient powder-house. Woodbridge, who was thrust through the body, died on the spot before morning. Phillips, who was slightly wounded, was assisted by his brother, Gillam, and by Peter Faneuil, to make his escape, to the British man-of-war Sheerness, which conveyed him to France. Within a year he died of grief at Rochelle.

Though the Granary contains more famous personages, yet it is not so rich in poetical effusions and striking epitaphs as is Copp's Hill. Perhaps the longest and most original piece of elegiac verse runs as follows :

TO THE MEMORY OF
MR WILLIAM WARDEN
PRINTER

(OBSIT, March J8th J786 Aged 25

William thy Mother consecrates this Stone,
A mark of Friendship, and of Love sincere;
While in her Memory, ever thou will Bloom,
And in her Heart forever will be dear.

While private Friends deplore their heavy los,.
The Publick at thy Death their grief display;
The usefull Prefs no longer from thy hand,
Shall to the lifting World the Tipe convey.

Yet, while we mourn, permit the briny Tear,
To wet thy Ashes, mouldering in the Duft;
Tho snach'd by cruel Death in early years,
To Heaven's blest realms with solid Hope we trust.

On the ornate monument southeast of the Franklin tomb, erected in memory of Gershom Flagg, were carved the following lines :

*To limits fix'd our Destined Course we bend
And with resistle/s Haste, to Death's pale Empire tend;
From scene to scene our shifting Moments go;
And then return the Ground the Dust we Owe,
Virtue alone unmov'd can hear the call,
And face the stroke that makes all Nature fall.*

The early severance of a scholar from his books is told in this wise !

In memory of
DANIEL JONES JUN^R A.M.
Who having been early deprived of a distinguished Genius
By disease of Body
Made a happy Exit
Augst 23^d 1779
In the 29th Year of his Age.

Here penfive Reader make a moment's pause
 Think how precarious ev'ry human Joy
 See Nature's Bloom difrob'd by nature's Cause
 And Death releafing what it can't' deftroys.

Thanks be to God that giveth us the Victory through our Lord Jefus Chrif.

An extremely incongruous name is enshrined in the following epitaph :

Here lyes the Body of
 M^{RS} WAITSTILL TROTT,
 the Wife of
 M^R THOMAS TROTT;
 She died June ye 8th
 1744 in the 39th
 Year of Her Age

On the tombstone of John Downing, who died April 29, 1694, aged 53, was inscribed the following fantastic conceit :

I bargained with Chrif for room below
 He grantf a manfion in his upper ftorie, thuf God givel more than we do afk or know inftead of Grace, Uninterrupted glorie.

The following epitaph fpeaks for itfelf :

To the Memory of
 CAPT. WILL'M CLAGHORN, of New Bedford,
Who died in a fit of the Apoplexy.
On a Vifit to this Town,
 Feb'y Ye 24th, 1793,
 in the 60th Year of his Age.

Here lies entomb'd, beneath the turfed Clod,
 A Man belov'd, the nobleft work of God;
 With friendly throbs, thine heart fhall beat no more,
 Clos'd the gay Scene, the Pomp of Life is o'er.

A hint of unpleasant experiences to come is conveyed in thefe ftanzas on the death of Sarah, the three-year old daughter of Capt. Levi Stutson :

Beneath, an infant fleeping lies,
 To earth her afhes lent,
 Hereafter, fhall more glorious rife,
 But not more Innocent.

When the archangel's tru'emp fhall blow,
 And foulds to Body join,
 What Crouds will wifh their lives Below
 Had been as fhort as thine.

INCREASE SUMNER TOMB, GRANARY BURIAL-GROUND.

The memory of Abiah Holbrook, "master of the South Writing School," who died at fifty-one in January, 1769, was thus preserved :

Still speaks the Instructor from the solemn Shade,
Ye living learn the lessons of the Dead;
Repine not that these dreary Vaults conclude
A Life of Labours for the Publick Good.
Calm sleeps the Flesh — Far-distant, unconfin'd,
In Joys unbounded wakes the immortal Mind.

Apart from the patriot orator who opposed the writes of assistance, there sleeps another James Otis in the Granary, dead in the same year, as told by the following inscription :

In Memory of
JAMES OTIS

Who Died July 7th, 1783, Aged 2 Years and 6 Months.

A rather ingenuous epitaph is the following' :

In Memory of
John Wheatley
An industrious member of society,
And a humble christian,
who departed this Life 12th March, 1778. Æt. 72

Over the two children of Noah and Elisabeth Stoddard, who died in 1787 and 1791, each aged fifteen months, were carved the following lines :

In Memory of
SOPHIA STODDARD
Who Died Sept'r 2Jst, J787,
Aged J5 months.

In Memory of
NOAH STODDARD
Who died August 27th, J791,
Aged J5 months.

Children of Noah & Elizabeth Stoddard.

Here lies two lovely babes, whose early breath
Was snatch'd by crewel, not untimely Death;
Hence did they go, just as they did begin,
Sorrow to know, before they knew to Sin.

Another instance of incongruous name :

HERE LYES BURIED
THE BODY OF CAPT
JOHN UNDERDOWN

IN YE 34TH YEAR

Some of the other interesting epitaphs follow :

Aged 48 Years
